Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1,2,5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Klein, et al (5922020).

Klein, et al , note figures 5,7 and 8, discloses a prosthesis for implantation within a body passage, comprising: a plurality of expandable segments defining a circumference and a longitudinal axis, each segment including an alternating pattern of curvilinear elements extending about the circumference, the alternating pattern including first set of curvilinear elements having a first resistance to expansion and a second set of curvilinear elements having a second resistance to expansion substantially higher than the first resistance to expansion and a connector extending between adjacent segments.

Claim 2, selected segments include regions having weakened portions relative to others so that the expansion characteristics of the prosthesis may be selectively deployed. (See column 3, lines 8-20)

Claim 5, the connector "38" comprises a pair of connectors located opposite one another on the circumference. (See Figures 7 or 8)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 6 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Klein, et al as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Burpee, et al (5913895).

Burpee, et al discloses connectors including a curve defining a sinusoidal shape extending at least partially circumferentially along the circumference adapted to extend and compress when the adjacent segments are subjected to force. To modify the connectors of Klein, et al to a configuration for adapting to extend and compress when the segments are subjected to force so as to better conform to the bending of the natural vessel, would have been obvious from the teachings of Burpee, et al.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3 and 4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
